Arrest Made On Tip from Car License

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 6—(P)—Two state agents last night nabbed the confessed slayer of a 14-year-old Springfield grade school girl at Columbus police headquarters.

The man, identified as Dwight David Tudor, 26, was seized when he brought Lillian Weaver, police record clerk, to work.

Miss Weaver, with whom Tudor had been keeping company since February, said:

"He told me he had killed a girl in Springfield Sunday night, but I just didn't believe him."

Miss Weaver, who had been accompanied to the police station by Tudor Monday night while police throughout the state were searching for the slayer of Mary Ann Page, resigned immediately.

Tudor was taken into custody by Everett L. McSavane and Richard Longnecker, investigators for the state Bureau of Identification, who had traced him through his driver's license and "teddy bears" pasted on the windshield of his automobile.

They said that the man, a filling station employee twice-married, after being brought to Springfield signed a confession stating he shot the girl Sunday night with a .22 caliber rifle when she refused to leave his automobile.

They were parked at the time at the Boone Station school, after drinking beer in a restaurant.

The body of the girl, a fifth grade pupil in a Springfield school, was found sprawled on the school grounds Monday morning. She had been shot three times.

Coroner Austin Richards said she had not been raped.

Officer McSavane said Tudor gave this account:

He had visited "several girls" in Springfield in the past, and on Sunday night picked up Miss Page and a 13-year-old companion.

After driving about for a while, Tudor left the younger girl at a bus stop and drove into the country with the Page girl.

"He said," McSavane reported, "he drove the girl to the school yard and sat with her a while; then went to the rear of his car and took a .22 caliber rifle from the trunk, went back and shot the girl."

"He returned to Columbus Sunday night and left the rifle at the home of a friend. We found the gun there. His clothing, part of which had been freshly washed but not ironed, was found in Miss Weaver's apartment."

The clothing will be tested for possible blood stains.

Coroner Austin Richards of Clark County said the Page girl had not been raped.

Sheriff J. Arthur Shuman of Clark County earlier said that Doris Kimball, 21, reported that she and Miss Page spent part of Sunday evening in a county beer parlor with two soldiers and a third man.

McSavane and Longnecker quoted Tudor that he met Miss Weaver, the Columbus police record clerk, while serving a jail term for non-support. He was assigned as a trustee to the police garage.

The officers added that Tudor told them he had been going with Miss Weaver since last February and had told her about the shooting Monday.

The ex-trusty made his first confession, the officers said, while they were accompanying him back to Springfield, where he signed a statement.

Miss Page was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Page of Springfield, and was a pupil in (Please turn to Page Two)

Soviet Delegate Listens Grimly Most of Time

A-Bomb Problem Revived by Britain In U N Committee

PARIS, Oct. 6—(P)—American, British and French U N security council leaders met late today to hammer out a resolution calling on Russia to end the Berlin blockade, a British official reported.

Their informal meeting was also to decide whether the west's end-the-blockade resolution would be a joint one in the name of the United States, Britain and France, or separate ones, the source said.

The general expectation was that the call would be a three-power affair.

The western allies in turn charged before the security council today that Russia is endangering world peace by blockading Berlin.

Moody Vishinsky

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, who announced yesterday a Soviet boycott of the debate, sat silently in both the morning and afternoon council sessions. He was at times interested, rapidly jotting notes. At other times he appeared grim or bored.

The old prosecutor gave no hint whether he would join the debate at some later session. He contended yesterday there is no blockade; that the security council is incompetent to settle the matter; and that only the foreign ministers' council can solve German problems until a peace treaty is written.

Phillip C. Jessup, a Columbia University professor, led the west's assault by declaring the United States has made every effort to agree with Russia and "remove the threat to the peace which has been created by the Soviet union and which, while it remains, is the insuperable obstacle to free negotiations."

Britain Makes Charge

Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain charged in the afternoon session:

"The Soviet union has resorted to illegal and forcible measures in order to assert its will in Berlin. This is something what can not be justified."

Then Alexandre Parodi of France took the floor and told the council Russia alone "bears direct responsibility for the dangerous situation created in Berlin."

When he finished, Argentina's Foreign Minister Juan Bramuglia, presiding, said no other speakers were listed and he intended to adjourn the council "during an intermediary waiting period until a further meeting is called by the president."

Vishinsky then took off his earphones with a grin and gathered up his papers to leave. The council adjourned at 4:25 P. M. (10:25 A. M. EST) and no date was set for the next meeting. Should the council try to take action against Russia, a Soviet veto is expected.

The Soviets blocked the rail, road and barge routes to Berlin in June. The United States and Britain have been supplying the city by air since. Lengthy negotiations in Moscow, and Berlin failed to resolve the crisis. The western powers then broke off negotiations and took the issue to the security council. High Russians have indicated the Soviet union will ignore any UN decision.

A-Bomb Problem

Meanwhile, Britain demanded that Russia give a "yes or no" answer to whether she agrees to the control of atomic energy before destruction of the atomic bomb.

In a blistering attack on Russian "threats to peace," British Minister of State Hector McNeill said that the United States and Britain "will not hand over information" on the bomb "semi-conditionally."

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6—(P)—City officials began a campaign against crime comic books today.

Mayor James A. Rhodes ordered Safety Director Charles C. Cole to draw up a city ordinance banning all comic books—and possibly magazines featuring sensational crime stories.

Mayor Rhodes said the move followed complaints by Columbus mothers. He intimated the city may set up a censorship board to pass on the acceptability of publications.

Meanderings

By Wash Fayette

I have heard many complaints, some of them from older residents, about the promiscuous riding of bicycles upon the sidewalks of the city.

In a number of instances persons have been struck by careless boys and girls who were riding bicycles upon the sidewalks, apparently totally unconscious that they were violating a city ordinance, and without regards to the safety of pedestrians, for whose exclusive use sidewalks were provided.

Not only has the riding of bicycles upon sidewalks in the up-town district reached a stage where it is a menace to pedestrians, but the practice of leaving bicycles lying in the middle of the sidewalks, or parked upon the walks, has long since become a menace to safety.

I am wondering if a little paternal advice to children would not help solve the problem of so many bicycles on sidewalks, instead of official action to enforce the ordinance and make the sidewalks more safe.

This is fire prevention week, and I know one man who owns one of the largest buildings in the city, who has invited every member of the fire department to visit his building, during off hours, and thoroughly familiarize themselves with the entire plant. He will pay them for their time.

The man stated that he wished each fireman to know all about the building, so that, if a fire should occur, they would know exactly what to do.

He also invited careful inspection of the building to eliminate all fire hazards possible.

Miami Lashed By Hurricane In Direct Hit

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 6—(P)—South Florida's "Gold Coast" dried out today after a tropical hurricane scrubbed the area with wind and rain.

One person died of a heart attack and six others were injured in the greater Miami area but all Florida apparently escaped serious wind and water damage.

Cuba counted 11 dead, 300 injured and crop damage estimated at $6,000,000 when the storm raked the island before moving on Florida. Key West escaped serious damage.

The Caribbean-born storm scored a direct hit on Miami. The center of the great swirling mass passed directly over the city early last night, roared on to Fort Lauderdale and sliced out to sea at Pompano.

Boston Is Cloudy and Cool For Opener of World Series; Cleveland Is Getting Ready

BOSTON, Oct. 6—(P)—Cool and cloudy weather came up for today's world series opener at Braves Field with Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians and Johnny Sain of the Boston Braves primed for a classic duel.

Cleveland goes into the game a strong 11 to 5 favorite. The meteorologist reported a storm moving up the coast had "lost most of its juice" and the rain, if it comes, should be light.

He added, however, that it will not be pleasant at the park with 20 to 30 mile per hour northeast winds and temperatures in the 50's prevailing.

Cleveland's bulge over the Braves, however, applies to the entire series and not to the opener, where the Indians rate an edge of only 7 to 5 against the home team.

An overnight forecast of rain failed to materialize and there seemed no possibility of any postponement of the first game of this best-of-seven set.

Long lines clogged the streets around the Braves ticket offices last night as they put on sale 2,500 standing room permits.

Some 1,500 seats in the "jury box" bleachers in the right field also have been sold as well as about 15,500 grandstand tickets at $6, about 17,800 pavilion seats at $5 and 1,800 boxes at $8.

It adds up to a gross gate of around $208,000, after the taxes, most of the remainder goes to the players who are counting on a fat payday.

TURBULENT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6—(P)—Unless the world series continues into next Monday, rooms will be found for all visitors in Cleveland, the Convention and Visitors Bureau promised today.

"Many people who want to get into our hotels will have to be satisfied with rooms in private homes, but there will be plenty of those," a bureau official said.

He said calls had been received all day yesterday from persons wishing to rent rooms. "We hope they will stay in line on prices," he added.

The hitch if the series runs through Monday is that 3,500 delegates to the Master Photo Dealers and Finishers Association will his fathers' little pacer Chestnut Time, in the money. He won his first race at Falmouth, Ky., a little more than a month after he got his license.

"Chestnut Time is not the easiest horse to handle, but Dick does a better job than some of the really finer men I have had in the sulkey," George S. Standriff, the father said.

"I have seen the horse rear at the pole and dump the driver, or cause him a lot of trouble."

"But the boy, who has been learning about horses since he was six years old, has the touch. Chestnut Time is well behaved when Dick holds the reins. The horse seems to know Dick has it."

As for the chubby youngster, he just grinned, flicked his whip, and petted the horse.

"No, the older, experienced drivers do not worry me," Dick told newsmen. "I am nervous before we leave the barn, but once I climb on the bike, I am all right. When the race is on, I have my (Please Turn to Page Twelve)

Boost in Dues Asked by Lewis

Mine Union Boss Also After Pay Hike

BY HAROLD WARD

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6—(P)—John L. Lewis recommended to the United Mine Workers convention today that union dues be boosted to $4 a month.

Monthly dues now average $2 of which the international gets 90 cents.

The proposal was referred to a committee studying constitutional changes.

Another change proposed would increase the initiation fee for new members from $10 to $50.

Lewis also recommended that union members who are receiving more than normal rates. Officials of the Cleveland Parking Association defended this, however, by pointing out that series tickets cost more than ducats for regular games.

The current price being asked for $6.25 reserved seats by scalpers was $25.

Iran Rocked By Quake and Damage Heavy

TEHRAN, Iran, Oct. 6—(P)—

Two hundred persons were killed and thousands were injured by an earthquake last midnight, a dispatch from Meshed said today.

Damage was reported great. The dispatch said parts of the famous Meshed Mosque called Goharshad collapsed.

Meshed is the capital of Khorasan Province, in eastern Iran.

A walled and Holy city, Meshed lies on a fertile plain about 100 miles northeast of Tehran. It contains the superb Mausoleum of the Imam Riza, which is visited annually by about 100,000 pilgrims. Commercially, it is an important regional trade center.

Boy, 15, Good Harness Race Driver

LEBANON, Oct. 6—(P)—A 13-year-old boy is showing the fans at the fall meeting here that driving harness races is not an old man's game.

The lad, Richard Standriff of nearby Williamsburg, O., is believed to be one of the youngest, if not the youngest, race driver ever given a license.

His skill was recognized last July 4, when he became eligible to race with the professionals, some of whom are four-times his age.

In his first eight starts, he drove

$2,000 Left To Hospital Here By Mrs. Clara Snider Reed To Furnish Room For Patients

As a result of a bequest contained in a codicil to the will of Mrs. Clara Snider Reed, who died on December 22, 1947, the Fayette County Board of Hospital Trustees, found the hospital fund increased by $2,000 this week.

Mrs. Reed's death followed injuries sustained when she was struck by an automobile while crossing the Greenfield Road near her home about two miles south of Washington C. H.

A check for the amount stipulated to help the hospital was presented to O. D. Farquhar, clerk and George Pensyl, secretary of the hospital board Tuesday, by Attorney Troy Junk, executor of Mrs. Reed's estate.

The money given is specified for providing a patient's room in the new institution to be appropriately dedicated to Mrs. Reed's memory; any balance in the fund after such provision, is to be used in providing care and (Please turn to Page Twelve)

Truman Strikes Back At Lewis after Attack

(By the Associated Press)

John L. Lewis' attack on President Truman as a "malignant, scheming man unfit for the presidency" brought this retort from Mr. Truman today:

"You remember the statement he made about John Garner—it made Garner a great man."

"The United Mine Workers chief once pictured former Vice President Garner as 'a whisky drinking, poker playing, evil old man.'"

He assailed Mr. Truman at the UMW convention in Cincinnati yesterday.

Mr. Truman's comment to reporters came as he left on a four-state eastern campaign swing. He plans to return Saturday to get a report on the United Nations affairs from Secretary of State Marshall.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had John Foster Dulles, his foreign affairs adviser, in for a lengthy discussion in Albany yesterday on the "current international situation."

Dulles, who is reported ticketed for the top state department spot if the Republicans win in November, was to return today to Paris where he is a U.S. delegate to the United Nations meeting.

Gov. Dewey is going to keep pounding away at a United America campaign theme on the ground it is restraining Russia.

The Republican presidential nominee also will continue to hammer at the idea that this country can maintain its prosperity and thus meet its economic commitments to western Europe.

Friends of the New York governor said Dulles, his closest adviser on foreign affairs, clinched those decisions in giving Dewey a first hand report on relations with the Soviet Union.

The White House announced Mr. Truman's decision to summon Marshall home from Paris without disclosing the specific topics he wishes to discuss.

'Jesse James Cave' And $100,000 Loot Reported Located

GADS HILL, Mo., Oct. 6—(P)—Location of a "Jesse James" cave where $100,000 has been reported found, may be announced Sunday.

Harry Wilcox has told 17 teenage boys and girls he will open the cave at that time.

Wilcox was named by a person who refused to be identified as having found $100,000 in coins and U. S. currency in the cave. Wilcox also was said to have $10,000 in gold coins in his possession.

Wilcox refused yesterday to make any statement to newsmen, other than to admit having seen U. S. Treasury agents on Monday.

He had previously reported finding the cave on Sept. 23. Gads Hill was the site of a train robbery by the James Gang in 1874 and Wilcox said he found articles in the cave he believed the gang had left.

Killing Confessed

(Continued from Page One) the fifth grade. The confession said Tudor was accosted by Miss Page and another girl on a Springfield street Sunday night, that they asked him to buy them beer.

They drank several bottles of beer, he said, before he left the younger girl at the bus stop and took Miss Page to the school yard. "After we drank the beer," the confession read, "I wanted to take her home but she wouldn't go."

"I remember parking for six or eight minutes in the school yard," Tudor, contending he did not have intimate relations with the girl, said that after they parked he asked her three or four times to leave his automobile.

Asked why he shot Miss Page, Tudor was quoted as replying: "There was nothing else to do. She wouldn't go home."

Tudor, who worked in a Columbus gasoline station, declared he "blanked out" during portions of the evening and had difficulty recalling what happened.

Tudor told police he had suffered mental lapses numerous times since he was wounded while serving as a medical corpsman on the Anzio beachhead in World War II. He reported he returned to Columbus Sunday night and went to bed at 1282 1/2 Oak Street, where Miss Weaver has an apartment.

Miss Weaver confirmed Tudor's story that he told her about the slaying. "He told me he had killed a girl in Springfield Sunday night," she said, "but I just didn't believe him."

She said she laundered a pair of blood-stained trousers for Tudor late Sunday.

Miss Weaver, brought to police headquarters for questioning, immediately submitted her resignation.

The resignation was accepted and Miss Weaver was told she would be detained for Springfield

Air Force Assn Reelects Smith

Officers Are Chosen At Meeting Tuesday

Victor Smith was reelected commander of the Washington C. H. Air Force Association at their meeting in Memorial Hall Tuesday evening.

Wilbur Snapp was elected vice-commander, Richard Patton, treasurer and Maurice Hopkins, secretary.

Members of the council are John P. Case, Michael Helfrich, Ralph Douglas, and Henton Cook. During the meeting it was decided to continue the Air Force Association dances and the next one was tentatively set for the night before Thanksgiving, Nov. 24. Smith said that all of the future dances would not be of the dimensions of the Sunny Dunham dance, but that they would bring well known bands to entertain at the GAR Hall. By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—(P)—Did the politburo tell Stalin to go back on his word?

That seems a fair question in view of the Russian double-talk on the Berlin crisis.

The politburo is a committee of top Communists in Russia. It checks on every problem before the government acts. It can issue orders independently.

Now look at what happened:

Early this year the United States, Britain and France began setting up a new German government in their zones of Germany. The Russian zone is not included.

Such a government, sponsored by the west, would be friendly to the west and a block to Russian efforts to control all Germany.

But the west said the "door is open" to Russia. The new government hasn't been set up yet. The western powers and the Germans in their zones are working on it.

Just keep that in mind a moment and go on to something else.

Last June Russia and the three western powers started two separate money systems in Berlin. The Russians did it first.

When the others did it, Russia stopped letting them send supplies overland into Berlin for their troops and for Germans in their sectors.

Russia could do this because, since Berlin is in the Russian zone, supplies for Berlin must pass through that zone.

Since June the western powers have had to send in supplies by plane.

To try to get the blockade lifted, the western governments told their ambassadors in Moscow to see Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov. The ambassadors had two talks with Stalin, 11 with Molotov.

They reported this:

They asked: Would Russia lift the land blockade if the western powers withdrew their money from Berlin and let the Russian money be the only kind used, provided all four powers had control over how it was used?

Molotov was balky but Stalin said "yes."

After the Moscow talks on that high level, representatives of the four powers sat down in Berlin to work out details of the agreement.

But--the Russians now not only said there could be no four-power control of Berlin money but even talk of extending their land blockade to a blockade of some supplies reaching Berlin by air.

The western powers looked upon this as breaking Stalin's promise made in Moscow. They dumped the whole Berlin crisis on the United Nations.

Finally, just as the UN debate on Berlin was about to begin, this happened:

Russian officials--but not Stalin--indicated that if the west wants the Berlin blockade lifted, it must abandon its idea of a western German government.

But if that's the price of lifting the blockade, why didn't Stalin say so in the first place?

The ambassadors who talked

Gas Situation Little Changed By New Ruling

New Space Heating Customers Are Not Permitted

Action of the State Utilities Commission Tuesday in barring many Ohio gas distributing companies from accepting new space heating customers which came in the nature of a reiteration of orders previously issued, are not expected to change existing conditions, insofar as made public to date.

The order barring acceptance of new space heating customers includes The Dayton Power and Light Company, distributors of natural gas here and in many surrounding points, but A. E. Weatherly, manager of The Dayton Power and Light Company at this point, said Wednesday that additional information probably will be available within a short time.

It was indicated here that insofar as known the situation as it affects this area, remains practically unchanged as compared with last winter.

The Utilities Commission's order reads:

"No distributing utility shall be required to furnish or supply natural gas to any new or prospective consumer for space heating," the commission's order read, "until such consumer shall have first made written application to and have obtained from such utility written authorization for such use."

The two unrestricted firms are The National Gas and Oil Corporation and The Newark Consumers' Gas Company.

Two companies partially limited are the River Gas Company and the East Ohio Gas Company.

The East Ohio Gas Company was authorized to accept 2500 space heating applicants in newly constructed buildings.

The commission also authorized the East Ohio Gas Co. to accept 4,687 customers desiring to convert from other fuel heating to gas heating.

The River Gas Company of Marietta was ordered to accept 300 additional space heating consumers.

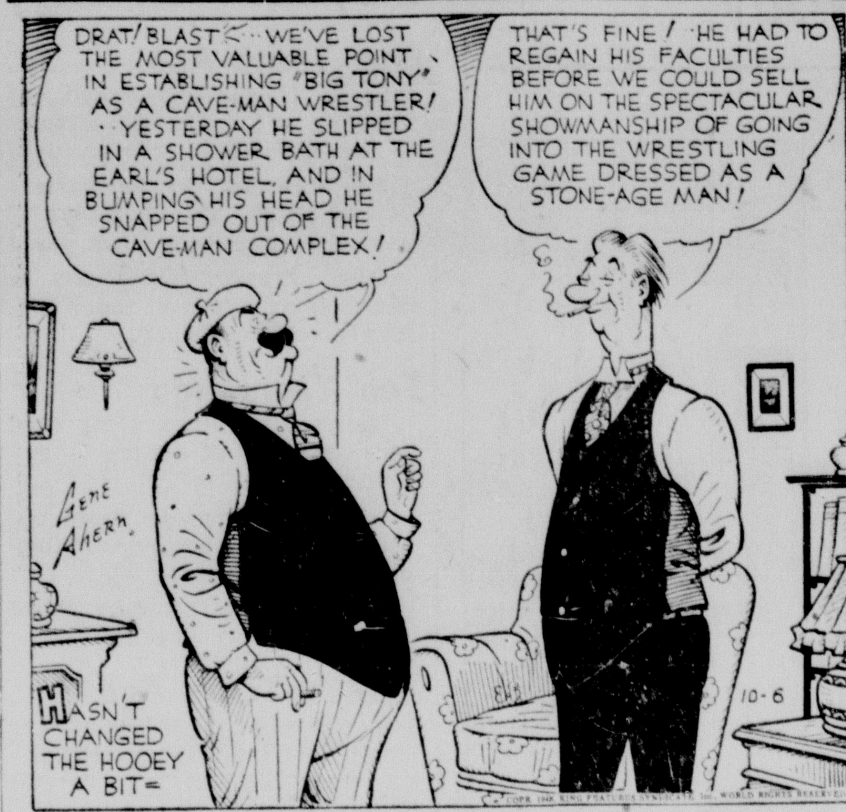

Each gas utility was instructed to submit monthly reports to the commission on the status of its gas supply.

The order in effect took responsibility for adding new space heating customers from the Gas companies and placed it with the commission.

the winter of 1948-1949 and thereafter is difficult to estimate," the order said, "because the Federal Power Commission has assumed the authority to allocate to companies in other states gas which which long distance pipe line companies are under contract to deliver to Ohio consumers."

The order explained "the continuing unprecedented demand for gas and the inability of the utilities and their suppliers to provide facilities to make additional gas available to consumers in Ohio has created an emergency affecting the health, safety and welfare of the people of the state of Ohio which will continue during the winter of 1948-49."

Art Brought Out By Hard Times

British Austerity Has New Reactions

LONDON—(P)—Owners of many of Britain's finest art collections are lending their pictures to public galleries throughout the country to escape increasing maintenance costs. Some of the collections contain masterpieces never before seen by the public.

One of the reasons for this new trend is that owners, unable to face increasing maintenance charges for their mansions, have moved to smaller quarters where suitable hanging space is not available. Others have found that fuel allocations are too small to provide a correct temperature for the pictures. Rather than store them and risk deterioration, they prefer to have them properly rehanging in the galleries.

The Duke of Devonshire is one of the latter group.

"We are faced with the problems of light and heat," his assistant librarian at Chatsworth House said. "The pictures would be better off in galleries because in a few years of conditions here they would deteriorate seriously." About 20 of the Chatsworth collection are already on loan to museums. Another 60, the best, will be exhibited here soon, then rehanging in museums. They will include Holbein's cartoon of Henry VIII, never before publicly exhibited.

Rebuilding of Plant Opposed in Lorain

LORAIN, Oct. 6—(P)—Plans for rebuilding the Brush Berlyium Co. plant, recently hit by a $350,000 fire, faced stiff opposition from a group of local residents today.

Petitions with more than 600 signatures were presented to city council last night asking that the lection has been loaned to the Scottish National Gallery, Edinburgh. Tapestries from two valuable sets, loaned by the Duke of Buccleuch to the ministry of works, are now hanging in the official residence of Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. Four others are at the British embassy. The remainder, now being repaired, will be allocated shortly.

They said "noxious and deleterious fumes were emitted by the plant" and "irreparable damage will continue if the plant's operation is not abated."

Berlyium a metal used in the atomic bomb and other manufacture, has been refined from ore at the government-owned plant.

Preventing Fires Is A Job For All Of Us

No nation, even one as amply endowed with the natural resources, invested wealth, economic stability and skilled "knowhow" which we now enjoy in the United States, can continue to absorb, without permanent impairment, the disastrous and preventable scourge of fire. Lives and property destroyed by fire are gone forever. This is something for all of us to remember, not only during this Fire Prevention Week, but at all times.

Many firemen die while fighting fires which are not counted in the nation's statistics of lives lost by fire, but indirectly the lives could have been saved had the fire been prevented. Every citizen should aid in the prevention of fires, much can be done if we all do our part to help reduce this terrible loss of life and property by one of man's worst enemies, "A FIRE OUT OF CONTROL."

Authorities especially call upon the businessmen, schools, churches, factories, and various organizations, such as the Grange, Farm Bureau, Boy Scouts, and many others not mentioned here, to cooperate in helping to reduce the needless waste by fire.

Now is the time to act if you want to prevent that would-be fire. Here are some worthwhile suggestions. Start and give your home or place of business a complete check to eliminate any possible chance of a fire, start in the attic of your premises and remove all rubbish, check all electric wiring, examine all chimneys and flues, have heating stoves and furnaces checked for defects. Also provide the proper protection under all stoves as well as around and behind them, see that all smoke pipes are in good repair and are at least 24 inches from any combustible materials. Remove any oily cloths, oil mops from the premises which might ignite from heating.

"Spontaneous combustion" causes many fires. Provide metal containers for ashes which are taken from stoves or furnaces. Never place ashes in cardboard boxes or baskets or in fact in any combustible container. Check all electric fuses to see that they are not over 15 Amp. rating; these are the safety valves in your electric system. Cover that old ruffed-up wood shingle roof with a good class C fire resistant roof to guard against a fire from chimney sparks falling on roof, or place an approved spark arrester on the chimney which is being used where coal or wood is used as fuel. Remove any cleaning fluid from the premises which is labeled "Inflammable," also all gasoline and kerosene, these should be stored outside of the building.

Provide ample ash trays for smokers and be sure that they are of material which are fireproof, and will not conduct heat to inflammable materials.

DON'T SMOKE IN BED. Keep matches out of the reach of children, and above all be careful of open fires, do not use kerosene in kindling fires in stoves and furnaces, this alone not only causes fires, but often times results in loss of lives as well.

The relative importance of baseball and other basic procedures in this home of the baseball bat has never been so clear as in these last few days. Truly a land without baseball bats would be a barren wilderness.

If anybody spoke to us in the cheery tone of voice accepted as standard by the male commercial radio announcers, we'd blush or worse.

Cranberry Empire's Own Railroad

By Hal Boyle

CARVER, Mass.—(P)—Cranberries built a railroad here.

The line is only 5½ miles long, but it carried 125,000 passengers last year.

"It's the last surviving two-foot gauge steam passenger railroad on the continent," said the owner, Ellis D. Atwood, 59, who is the nation's largest individual cranberry grower.

Atwood bought the old-fashioned small engines and cars for his privately operated "Edaville Railroad" from a defunct line in Maine several years ago. It has become one of the chief tourist attractions in this section of Massachusetts.

But Yankees think even a hobby should pay its own way, so Atwood's busy little railroad has a function beyond keeping him and the tourists amused. It hauls from bog to boxing factory the 10,000 to 12,000 barrels of cranberries he grows each year.

The railroad winds around the 1,800 marshy acres that yield the small red berries which built a fortune for the Atwoods in the last three generations.

The economic possibilities of the cranberry were overlooked for two centuries by the descendants of the Pilgrims who landed in 1620 at Plymouth, only a few miles from here. But in the last 100 years it has become Massachusetts' most valuable export crop.

Today the state grows 63 percent of the world's supply of cranberries, and more than 50 percent are produced within a fourteen-mile radius of this small village.

The cranberry used to be as wild as the Indian. Now it is tame—and profitable. It fetched $31.40 a barrel in 1946, $19 a barrel last year. This year the opening price was $15, but even at that figure it pays good dividends to thrifty farmers here.

"Ten acres of berries can earn a family a good living," said Atwood.

Cranberries are grown on land useless for any other crop. They demand four things—peat bogs, sand, plenty of water and a cold climate. They are raised commercially here, in New Jersey and in Wisconsin, Washington and Oregon.

But although they are grown on waste soil they are a fairly expensive crop to cultivate.

"It takes $3,000 today to put an acre of cranberry bog in producing condition," said Atwood. He uses a helicopter to dust and spray his bogs against insects, but the crop still has to be gathered by hand.

The bogs are flooded in the winter to protect the plants from being dried out by bitter winds. Once every two or three years they must be covered with sand. The picking season now is under way, and the bogs are a colorful old-world sight.

Most of the pickers are immigrants from the Cape Verde Islands off Africa. They go into the fields carrying large two-handed scoops, kneel and sweep the containers through the tangled plants. Gathering the berries in this way is hard, arduous labor—but it pays well.

"The pickers get 40 cents a bushel and can easily average 40 bushels a day," said a foreman on Atwood's plantation. "A fast picker in a good bog can bring in 100 bushels a day."

After the hand-picking is done, the bogs are flooded. A power boat then cruises about agitating the water, and the loose berries come to the surface. They are gathered in long handled wire nets.

You can tell a good cranberry by its bounce more than by its color. And that is how they are sorted. They are dropped into a series of wooden-flanged containers. Those that bounce over the sides land on a conveyor belt that starts them on the way to the nation's fruit and vegetable stands.

Those that don't bounce don't go to market. They never get to team up with the Thanksgiving turkey.

Sharp Division of Power in U. S.

By George E. Sokolsky

The Constitution of this country never intended so sharp a division of authority as President Truman seeks to establish among the three branches of government.

To Truman, the executive, the legislative and the judicial branches are separate, distinct, non-cooperative and antagonistic. What the Constitution seeks is not an anarchy of quarreling, cantankerous separate governmental sections, but rather a balance of power, an avoidance of overweighing one with too much authority; yet each dependent upon the other.

For instance, Congress passes legislation, but the president must approve or veto the acts of Congress. The president is in charge of administration, but Congress provides the appropriations. The president collects taxes, but Congress decides how much they are to be and how they are to be spent. The justices of the Supreme Court are appointed by the president with the advice and consent of the Senate, but they may invalidate an act of Congress approved by the president.

The balance of powers with a dovetailing of functions is the particular genius of American government and has safeguarded the American people from tyranny by a president or by a majority or by an overpowering minority.

Recently President Truman wrote a letter to David P. Findling, associate general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, in which he displayed a total misunderstanding of the essence of the American governmental plan.

"In my conference with the National Labor Relations Board on its organization, I informed the members of that board and the counsel that they constituted a part of the executive branch of the government and since the chief executive did not expect to interfere in their internal affairs, he expected that they would be immune to pressure from the legislative branch of the government."

The NLRB is not outside the American constitutional system. It does not exist on the moon or Mars. Its members are appointed by the president with the advice and consent of the Senate. Its appropriations are passed on by the bureau of the budget, are submitted for consideration to Congress, are investigated by a committee of each house, are passed by Congress, signed by the president, paid by the treasury, in conformity with congressional decision, out of taxes collected principally by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. At least five committees of Congress may at any time investigate the NLRB with vast powers of subpoena. Its decisions are, in some matters, subject to judicial review.

This is very different from President Truman's concept of any board, bureau, commission, department of government standing far off alone, separate from all else. His error arose from a political desire to hit at Senator Taft, which is not important one way or the other, as the senator is able to fend for himself, and were this an isolated instance one might let it pass as a side-swipe during a campaign.

But the president has assumed this same attitude in relationship with data needed by congressional committees in their investigations. Much of this data exists in the files of administrative agencies of government. Some of it is now available nowhere else. Mr. Truman adopts the position that he and the eightieth Congress are having a personal quarrel and that he will provide no data to it, no matter how important it may be from a national standpoint that it should be made available.

Similarly, in spite of the fact that Congress may pass wrong legislation because it lacks the facts which the state department possesses, he has only provided the Republican majority with a minimum of information on the conduct of our foreign policy—and that despite an agreement to operate a bipartisan foreign policy and the formal designation of John Foster Dulles to represent the Republicans in this relationship.

It is curious that Mr. Truman should assume this attitude, for he started his national career as a senator, served as chairman of an investigating committee and moved in on executive branches of government while he acted in that capacity. Apparently, his anger at Congress's unwillingness to accept his leadership on the same terms that it accepted Mr. Roosevelt's leadership has so angered him that his point of view has become distorted.

Common Causes Of Indigestion

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

INDIGESTION, which has been called "the great American stomach," is one of the most common disorders of mankind. And if its sufferers are legion, so are its symptoms and causes. For this reason, it is among the most difficult of the physician's problems.

Indigestion may be due to some actual disease of the digestive organs or it may result merely from poor functioning of the stomach and bowel. Thus, the first question the doctor treating a patient with indigestion must decide is whether a diseased condition is responsible for the trouble.

Due to Nerves

Previous studies have shown that it is never safe to assume that the symptoms of poor digestion are due to "nerves." In one study of more than 2,500 patients, it was found that half of those with stomach and bowel disturbances had some actual organic disease.

Recently this figure has been strikingly confirmed by Dr. Henry M. Wims in a study of 1,000 patients, 200 of whom complained chiefly of indigestion. Of this number, more than half had organic diseases of the stomach and bowel. Examination revealed them to be suffering from such things as ulcer, cancer of the stomach, liver disease, gallstones, anemia, bowel inflammation and the little-out-pouchings of the intestinal wall known as diverticula.

In view of this great variety of things which may produce digestive trouble, it is clear that no case of indigestion can or should be treated until thorough study has revealed its cause.

Confining the examination to X-rays of the stomach, bowel, and gallbladder is not advisable because of the many other conditions producing indigestion.

(Copyright, 1948, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Indigestion which cannot be revealed by such a limited examination. For example, heart failure often causes digestive upsets.

Food Allergies

Digestive disturbance may be due to food allergies or sensitivity to food of one type or another. It is frequently difficult to decide whether or not the indigestion is due to sensitivity to food. Many people are subject to heartburn, a feeling of fullness, excessive gas in the bowel, and a feeling of discomfort if they eat certain foods. It is true that these symptoms may be produced by food allergy, but they may also come from many other causes.

Indigestion may be a functional disorder that is not due to organic disease but to some way in which the bowel and stomach are acting.

In a number of the patients studied, no cause for the indigestion could be found other than fatigue and poor habits. It is possible that there is some other responsible cause in many of these cases, of which medical science is as yet unaware. Lack of sleep, and excessive use of tobacco, coffee and alcohol are common habits which may contribute to digestive disturbances.

Remember that indigestion is only a symptom which, like headache, may come from a large variety of causes. It is only after a thorough study has been made to determine the exact cause that the most effective treatment can be outlined.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. B.: I have a pain in my back under the shoulder blade. This occurred after a severe case of bronchitis.

Answer: The pain may be due to pleurisy, that is, inflammation of the membrane lining the chest cavity over the lungs.

You should have a thorough study made so that the exact cause may be found.

Trouble Is Brewing French Coal Strike

LILLE, France, Oct. 6—(P)—A department official today predicted trouble in the French coal strike.

About 335,000 miners failed to show up yesterday at the government-owned pits, virtually paralyzing France's entire coal industry. The first day of the strike passed without violence, but Jean Souvraz, top aide to the prefect of Nord department (Province) told newsmen:

"These things always go quietly at first. It is different after the people begin to think of going hungry and when there are a constant succession of meetings to keep them excited. Watch for trouble after a few days."

No immediate solution was in sight for the strike, France's biggest work stoppage this year.

Browning Club Resumes Fall Meetings With Lovely Tea On Tuesday Evening

At the opening meeting of the Browning Club, season, held at the American Legion Hall, Tuesday evening Mrs. Emerson Chapman the newly elected president presided. She introduced the executive board, Mrs. David S. Rowe, Mrs. Frank S. Jackson, and Mrs. A. B. Murray, the treasurer, Mrs. Robert Auginbaugh and the chairman of the five departments, Mrs. D. R. Murdock, Mrs. Glenn Rodgers, Mrs. Willard Bitzer.

Miss Jane Trent and Mrs. Thomas Bush.

The executive board then announced the selection of Mrs. Darrell Williams to fill the office of secretary following the resignation of Mrs. Ray Terrill. Mrs. Thomas Bush program chairman for the evening presented Miss Ann McCorkle, who is instructor of vocal music in the Washington C. H. High School.

Miss McCorkle in a brilliant manner played a group of piano selections and included three of George Gershwin's songs using her own arrangement of the following "Embraceable You," "Love Walked In" and "Fascinating Rhythm," in a lovely medley. The second selection also in her own arrangement was "Old Man River" by Jerome Kern.

Mrs. Bush also presented Mrs. Stanley Chitty who interestingly reviewed the book "The Great Rehearsal" by Carl Van Doren, and opened with this quotation:

"No morn ever dawned more favorably than ours did; And no day was ever more clouded than the present."

George Washington, to James Madison, Nov. 5, 1786, and continued by saying, "The most momentous chapter in American history is the story of the making and ratifying of the constitution."

In that year 1787 the problem was how the people could learn to think nationally, not locally, about the United States. In 1948 the problem is how the people can learn to think internationally, not nationally, about the United Nations. "The parallel between 1787 and 1948 is naturally not exact. Each age must make and keep its own government and determine its own future. In late generations the Federal Convention of 1787 has been accused of evolving a scheme for the support of special economic interests, or even a conspiracy for depriving the majority of the people of their liberties. Opinion has swung back and forth, while the constitution itself has grown into a strong yet flexible organism generally responsive to the national circumstances and necessities."

"The author points out that it is impossible to read the story of the making and ratifying of the constitution of the United States without finding there, all the arguments in favor of a world government. Certainly the supporters of the constitution in 1787 knew that their undertaking might be a 'rehearsal' for the governments of the future."

Mrs. Chitty received a round of applause from her listeners who greatly appreciated the charm and poise displayed as she handled the difficult subject, most efficiently. Mrs. Chapman invited the members and guests to a beautifully appointed tea table which was adorned with a formal arrangement of yellow gladioli's, yellow baby mums and huge bronze Chrysanthemums in a crystal watergarden, which were the gift of the president Mrs. Chapman.

Mrs. Frank S. Jackson and Mrs. David S. Rowe presided over the antique pewter tea and coffee services at either end, and were assisted by the officers and chairmen and the executive board in the serving of the dainty tea delicacies to the fifty guests present.

Mrs. Pensyl Is Hostess At Dinner For Class Members

Thirty members of the Leadership Training Class of First Presbyterian Church were guests of their teacher, Mrs. Clark Pensyl, on Tuesday evening, who entertained them at a lovely dinner.

Fall flowers were admired throughout the rooms by the guests and on the long table and several smaller tables seating the group for the tempting two course meal were centered with lovely arrangements of flowers. The guests found their places cleverly marked with hand crocheted dish cloths, with gay colors used in the form of evening gowns.

Delta Kappa Gamma Members Hear Discussion On Fashions At State Convention

The Delta Kappa Gamma is a national honorary education society. In Ohio it is made up of sixty-two chapters with 2,600 members. Its tenth annual State Convention was held at Hotel Cleveland, Cleveland on October 1-2.

The theme of the convention was "World Peace is Friendship Universalized," and the convention program was built around the thought of breaking down the citadels of our own prejudices, and thereby helping to build a new and friendly world.

A reception was held in the hotel ballroom on Friday evening. For entertainment, highly costumed nationality groups presented their folk songs and dances. There was the St. Mary's Rumanian Orthodox Church group; the Central Senior High School dance group; the Ukrainian Dancers Guild; and the Lincoln High School Choir. Unexcelled in beauty and precision was the spectacular dancing and posing of a group of colored youth of the Senior High School.

The business session on Saturday morning was followed by a high-noon luncheon, after which there was a style show. It was a breathless audience which listened to youthful Miss Beatrice Vincent, stylist of the Cleveland May Company, talk on "Fashions."

"Hat," she said, "is no longer a conversational piece. It is small, elegant and unadorned, and looks like a part of the suit. Clothes are dramatic, not flashy. This is the era of refinement and gentleness, of subdued Victorian colors. There are combined shades of gray, of green, of brown, of wine, and navy and black for winter. Skirts seem narrow but have pleated backs. They are worn twelve inches from the floor unless one is short, when they should be worn eleven inches from the floor. Shoes are long and narrow, and toes and heels are in." Each point was illustrated by a group of professional models.

Mr. Guy Varner, assistant principal of the Lincoln High School was a magnetic speaker. His school is a curriculum center of Inter-Cultural Relations, concentrating on International Relationships. He told of visiting twenty-one Latin-American countries during the last year, to try to find out what their schools are teaching about us, and what they would like for us to teach about them.

At the afternoon session of the convention the new officers were installed after which the Cleveland Chapter members volunteered their cars for all who desired to go sight-seeing.

The Founders' Banquet—a formal dress affair, and the high point of the convention—was held in the ballroom on Saturday night. Miss Margaret Boyd, retiring president, presided at the closing program and Dr. Virginia S. Sanderson, professor of Speech and Adult Education at Ohio State University and the newly elected president, was the toastmistress.

Elaborate candle-lighting ceremonies honored the Founders—State and National—of Delta Kappa Gamma. A gift—a bracelet, pin and earrings, studded with diamonds, was presented to Miss Margaret White, State Founder and executive secretary, now retiring.

Dainty Miss Phiedra Evangelidion, future teacher, of Athens, Greece, brought to the United States by the Ohio Delta Kappa Gamma Society, was the "Sweetheart" of the convention as she spoke her thanks and appreciation in quite good English.

Dr. Alpentels, noted anthropologist and assistant professor at the University of New York was the last speaker. She talked on "The Roots and the Routes to Human Understanding." She declared that Darwin's theory of the descent (or the ascent) of man from the ape had been discredited by scientists long ago. Every race, she said, white, yellow and Negro, believes that its own race is superior. Yet there is no superior race—only superior individuals.

Members of the Alpha Delta Chapter who attended the Delta Kappa Gamma State Convention were: Miss Marjorie Evans, Miss Opal Davis, Mrs. Frank Mayo, Mrs. Olive Prosch, Dr. Ruth Teeters and Miss Agnes Kerrigan.

LIMA LADY LOSES 88½ POUNDS WITH THIS HOME RECIPE

Mrs. C. M. Wright, 124 West 5th St., loses weight without dieting.

"I have tried many reducing preparations but nothing ever helped me until I tried Rennie," writes Mrs. Wright. "Since I started taking Rennie I have eaten as much as I wanted and anything that I wanted yet I have lost weight and feel much better than I have in ten years. Before taking Rennie my excess weight kept me tired out all of the time. I am so happy that I tried Rennie because the other products that I have tried didn't help me at all. My druggist recommended Rennie to me and I wouldn't be without it."

Rennie is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple, go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennie. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough un-sweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle, take just two tablespoons twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and regain slender, more graceful curves—if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles; just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennie, no starvation diet, no printed diet list to buy, no expensive vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry.

Talk On South Africa Is Heard By Rotarians

Mrs. G. J. Welge Tells Of Her 11 Years In Far Off Country

Rotarians and guests at the Tuesday meeting at the Country Club were treated to a very interesting and entertaining description of parts of South Africa, the people, the country, the problems, customs and living conditions. The speaker was Mrs. George J. Welge who spent 11 years in that land during the time her husband was assigned there in charge of work for The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company.

Mrs. Welge is a native of this part of Ohio and now resides here at 418 East Market Street. She was introduced by Ralph Penn of the October program committee.

In opening her remarks the speaker told of her trip and some of the interesting spots she and her husband visited while enroute to the land where they were to spend more than a decade.

She commented freely on the types of inhabitants of South Africa and stressed the beauty of scenery and flowers to be found in that country.

"South Africa is almost disappointingly modern," said the speaker. "Most people, as I did, think of it as 'Darkest Africa' but the ports are busy and important—and the cities are up-to-date and certainly are thriving."

"American business has moved in but not American business methods," she continued. "Everything is leisurely—a sort of holiday mood prevails but things get done. Until the second World War the population depended on imports but during the war many new industries were started. They were unsatisfactory at first for people were critical of local manufacturing, but they are improving."

"The white population—about 2,000,000 in the whole country—is predominately Dutch or Africans, but many British people settled there after the Boer war and English is spoken everywhere. However, the official language is Afrikaans and to hold any sort of position one must be bilingual. The natives put most English-speaking people to shame since the mission trained ones speak their own language—known as Afrikaans—and also English, after a fashion."

"Durban, on the east coast, and the Indian Ocean, where we lived for 11 years, is the loveliest and most interesting city in South Africa. The climate of the country is sub-tropical and there is year-round bathing, golf, tennis and outdoor bowling."

"The charm of the country lies in its very modern and comfortable cities. In a short drive out of the cities there is found native life in the raw and the beautiful scenery of the Drakensberg Mountains. Every one is holiday-minded and is continually on the move. People living up country go to the coast, and those on the coast go to the mountains. There are good resort hotels everywhere. Fishing is good, many mountain streams have been stocked with American trout and bass at great expense and of course there is wonderful sea fishing."

"Kruger National Park or Game Reserve is a 'must' with everyone and well worthwhile for a stay. You can go there and spend days or weeks if you prefer, driving on well laid out roads, patrolled by rangers, and see wild life in its natural setting. Lions, leopards, giraffes, zebras, hippos, rhinos, crocodiles and elephants, almost anything can be found there. There are camps well protected in the reserve where you can take lodging."

Mrs. Welge touched very lightly on political conditions, stating among other things that the growing Indian population there which is agitating on the right to vote, is creating a problem.

"People everywhere in that country are friendly and hospitable. It's a lovely country," Mrs. Welge concluded.

During the business session, President John Abernethy called upon O. D. Farquhar for a report on the club's bowling team which he said had started the season victoriously. Farquhar called for more bowlers, stating that any Rotarian would be welcome to join the bowling squad.

It also was announced that Oct. 20 was being held for a Rotary Ann meeting.

On Oct. 12 it was originally planned that Congressman Clarence J. Brown was booked for an address. Word was received this week, however, that owing to Brown's illness, he was obliged to return to a hospital in Washington, D. C. for some treatments and would not be able to come here. Another speaker will be substituted.

Engle Reelected To Farm Bureau Council

Walter Engle was reelected chairman of the Union Township Farm Bureau Council No. 1 at a meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hays.

Other officers elected during the session were: Walter Thompson, vice-chairman; Mrs. Beryl Cavine, secretary and treasurer and Lovell Kauffman, discussion leader.

Mrs. Hays was elected Home and Community Committee representative for the council. Kauffman spoke briefly quoting statistics that show rural people are not as civic minded as people in the city in that they do not vote as frequently. He urged all of the council members to cast their ballots in the coming election.

Union Services Discussed for Thanksgiving

Several Other Topics Taken Up at Meeting Of Ministers Here

Union Thanksgiving services were discussed at the meeting of the Fayette County Ministerial Association in the Presbyterian Church House Tuesday.

It was decided that they would be alternated between the four downtown churches each year. This year the service will be at the First Christian Church, of which Rev. C. B. Tigner is pastor. Rev. A. W. Caley will give the Thanksgiving sermon.

The other four churches which will be host to union services in the future are the First Baptist, First Presbyterian and Grace Methodist.

Tuesday's meeting was the first conducted by Rev. Allan W. Caley, pastor of Grace Church, the association's new president. It was largely attended.

There was a discussion during the meeting concerning the statement issued by the Ministerial Association about the band trip to Cleveland Sept. 26. It was stated that the ministers felt this protest might prevent similar future activities.

There was discussion, too, of the Record-Herald report of September 20 which quoted the statement of the association in full. The thought was voiced that the re-

Bottom of Sea Becomes Issue

Underwater Plans Raise Question

COPENHAGEN — (AP) — Who owns the bottom of the sea?

This question has been debated among experts on international law, but has now become more prominent than ever with the Belgium professors Piccard and Max Cossyns planning to descend 12,000 down through the ocean.

A world known Danish expert on international law, Dr. Juris Georg Cohn of the Danish foreign office, says the problem now needs a solution since the United States, Argentina, Mexico, Chile and this year also Iceland have proclaimed themselves owners of the bottom of the sea from their beaches to where the mainland under the water suddenly slopes down from about 600 feet under sea level to 3,000 feet or more.

It is now considered only a matter of time when minerals and coal may be found there. Russia for a long time has been pumping oil from the bottom of the Caspian Sea.

In 1930 the first international conversations on the problem were held. It proved impossible to reach an understanding because the participating nations held different views on the question how far the sea should be regarded territorial waters.

"It is difficult to state from existing rules of international law who can be placed as the owner of the bottom of the sea, but I can't see how anybody can argue against claims that a certain part of the seabottom extending from the coast belongs to the country on mainland," says Dr. Cohn.

One theory is that the manna of the Bible is lichen, blown for hundreds of miles by the wind.

Finding Jobs For Physically Handicapped

Drive Being Pushed Throughout Nation All This Week

This is the week that every effort is being made to furnish employment to the physically handicapped, throughout the nation.

In Ohio more than 14,000 jobs have been filled with handicapped workers through the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation since the beginning of the year, George Palmer, chairman of the Ohio committee for National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, has stated.

However the objective of the move is still a long way from being achieved, for the objective is to find jobs for all of those who are physically handicapped, whether they are veterans or non veterans.

A number have found employment in Fayette County, through the agency of the Unemployment Compensation office here.

About 10,000 handicapped workers are currently looking for jobs through the BUC alone. Some 25,000 handicapped Ohioans are either seeking jobs or are in need of rehabilitation to qualify for such jobs. Additional thousands have neither applied for jobs nor for rehabilitation chiefly because they are not aware of the opportunities available through agencies such as the Veterans Administration and the state welfare department.

The NEPH Week observance is therefore dedicated to an objective above and beyond the actual placement of handicapped workers. It is also concerned with "selling" employers on the value of accepting qualified handicaps as well as with "selling" the handicapped themselves on the opportunities available.

Indicative of the long strides forward which have been taken in educating the public as to the problems of the handicapped worker as well as to the benefits accruing from his employment is the fact that the BUC alone has filled about 120,000 jobs with handicapped persons between 1940 and the present. During 1945—the last war year—the agency set a record when it filled almost 25,000 jobs with qualified handicaps.

Fraud Now Scented in Army Contract

LIMA, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Investigation of alleged "irregularities" in bidding for an army paving contract loomed today.

Seven unsuccessful bidders for the project said yesterday they will ask the defense department to investigate the bidding.

The project called for paving 209 vehicle storage tanks at the Lima Ordnance Plant with a material called uniflex—or, "its equal."

Depot Commander Col. R. B. Fontaine said the low bid was submitted by the Acorn Refining Co. of Cleveland, makers of uniflex. The unsuccessful bidders said the army's specifications called for a five-year guarantee, which only the uniflex manufacturers would grant. Consequently, they explained, it was necessary for them to solicit bids from the Acorn Co.

They complained the Acorn Company's low bid offered the manufacturing price of uniflex, with which they could not compete.

Conservancy Hearing Recessed for Month

DEFIANCE, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Northwestern Ohioans seeking to set up a Maumee watershed conservancy district have until Nov. 8 to prepare their case.

The 15-judge conservancy court yesterday granted the group's request for more time. Previously a continuance asked by the same petitioners had been refused. It was asked because their Chief Attorney, Karl H. Weaver, Jr., was not available now.

The court turned down a dismissal motion made by John Davidson, assistant Allen County prosecutor. He based it on grounds that the proponents were not prepared to give their case.

The proposed district would administer flood, pollution, and soil erosion control programs in the valley.

The total enrollment of Sunday schools in the United States is estimated at nearly 23 million.

Herbert Will Run Behind Dewey, Is Taft's Prediction

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said today he thinks Governor Thomas Herbert of Ohio will run behind a Republican national ticket in the election next month.

Taft told a news conference he believes that Herbert, a Republican up for reelection, will win "but by a good deal less than" Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP presidential candidate.

Taft declined to estimate the margin he thought Herbert would run behind Dewey.

Herbert is opposed by Frank Lausche, former Ohio Democratic governor.

Taft said his Ohio speaking schedule, after a southern tour, will include appearances at Cincinnati and Chillicothe Oct. 21, Wilmington, Oct. 22, and Cleveland, Oct. 24.

He said he and Mrs. Taft will leave for Europe November 4. They will spend most of their time in Italy, he said, with a few days in Germany and France, returning to New York on December 14.

Ohio Housing Outlook Not Bright

By ALFRED C. HALL

COLUMBUS, — (AP) — What price a roof over your head?

Is the housing problem in Ohio being solved, or is it becoming more acute? What are the odds against the home-seeker in his private battle against inflation?

The picture isn't too rosy, but there may be one consolation, says Don L. Tobin, executive secretary of the Ohio Savings and Loan league. That consolation is, he says, that while the cost of shelter is high—it is a wonder that it isn't higher.

The league, with headquarters in Columbus, keeps a constant, watchful eye on housing and building problems. It recognizes the many special problems of certain areas and the many factors involved, but Tobin, in drawing a general picture of the Ohio situation, says:

"While prices of existing property have leveled off, and in many instances are lower than a year ago, the cost of new residential construction continues to increase and probably will for the rest of 1948.

"The housing shortage is being solved but the price of shelter cannot be expected to drop materially until there is a decrease in the general price structure," the league secretary said.

He pointed to one action which has had a sobering effect on the spiraling prices of existing and new residential building.

In line with deflationary measures taken by the federal reserve system and member banks, Tobin said, saving and loan associations have demanded larger and larger down payments as prices increased.

In stating the acute housing shortage that existed for a year after the end of the war has eased considerably, Tobin said that towards this end, Ohio savings and loan association during the first eight months of 1948 have made 70,500 loans to home-owners, of which 24,657 have been for newly constructed shelter units.

Other lending institutions, he said, have added at least 20,000 additional new units, making approximately 44,657 new units either started or completed during the first eight months of this year.

"There always is a housing shortage when employment and income are high and a surplus when employment and income are low," Tobin pointed out.

"The shortage during the past several years," he said, "became acute because of the increase in the number of families, a decrease in the number of people occupying a unit of shelter, higher birth rate, rent control and higher incomes."

He said the cost of housing is high because the demand exceeds the supply—because the cost of labor is higher, and that "labor costs, one way or another, account for 90 percent of the cost of a home."

21 Blood Relatives To Give Welcome

LONDON—Kinfolks will be a minor worry to Baby Windsor. Princess Elizabeth's child whose birth is expected in November will be more than an only child.

Leaving out second, third or further removed cousins and the folks who just married into the family, the blood relations number 21.

There are the parents, two grandmothers, one grandfather, two great-grandmothers, four aunts, four great-aunts and six great uncles. The parents divide these: twelve on the side of Princess Elizabeth and seven for Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

Grandmothers will be Queen Elizabeth and Princess Alice Elizabeth Julia Marie, the duke's mother.

King George VI is the lone living grandfather.

The two great-grandmothers are 81-year-old Queen Mary of England and 85-year-old Victoria, Alberta Elizabeth Mathilde Marie, Marchioness of Milford Haven.

Neither parent has a brother, so uncles are out.

Most famous aunt is 18-year-old Princess Margaret, younger sister of the mother. Three others, sisters of Duke Philip, are Princess Margarita of Hohenlohe-Lengenburg.

stitutions are as amply supplied with funds."

Despite high prices of shelter, Tobin stated, "housing today is not beyond the reach of the families of modest means." He said in Ohio, 46.3 percent of the families with incomes under $3,000 own their own homes.

During September 27 new automobiles were sold in Fayette County, together with 425 used cars.

In August 43 new cars and 456 used cars were sold in the county, as shown by the records of the deputy clerk of courts, Miss Jean West.

During September 12 new trucks and 36 used ones changed hands, and in August 19 new trucks and 30 used ones changed owners in the county.

Three motorcycles changed hands in September and four in August, the report shows.

Roof Fires Cause Most Fire Alarms

Fires in shingle roofs led all other causes of fires in Washington C. H. the past year, as has nearly always been the case, Fire Chief George Hall said Wednesday in connection with Fire Prevention Week, now being observed throughout the nation.

Hall said the shingle roof fires were not only the most numerous causes of fires, but losses were usually the heaviest when the year's damages were footed up.

Short circuits in buildings and automobiles came next in order of cause of fires, Hall said.

The third most frequent cause was carelessness with matches and smoking, and fourth was defective heating equipment.

Grass and rubbish fires also rank well up the line as causes of fires, he said.

Composition or slate roofs end threats of fires by sparks from chimneys, and a stringent building code with reference to wiring and plumbing would greatly reduce the number of fires caused by short circuits and defective heating units, the fire chief stated.

School Aid Study By C of C Set Up

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce today named a 15-member committee on education to study public school problems.

President C. I. Weaver said the committee will make recommendations on immediate and long-range education problems to the chamber's board of directors.

Weaver said the committee will study the effect of any proposed additional aids to schools by the state. Its main goal, he said, will be to promote a better understanding among educators and the people of Ohio "as to the genuine interest which business has in sound educational programs."

Ohio Housing Outlook Not Bright

By ALFRED C. HALL

COLUMBUS, — (AP) — What price a roof over your head?

Is the housing problem in Ohio being solved, or is it becoming more acute? What are the odds against the home-seeker in his private battle against inflation?

The picture isn't too rosy, but there may be one consolation, says Don L. Tobin, executive secretary of the Ohio Savings and Loan league. That consolation is, he says, that while the cost of shelter is high—it is a wonder that it isn't higher.

The league, with headquarters in Columbus, keeps a constant, watchful eye on housing and building problems. It recognizes the many special problems of certain areas and the many factors involved, but Tobin, in drawing a general picture of the Ohio situation, says:

"While prices of existing property have leveled off, and in many instances are lower than a year ago, the cost of new residential construction continues to increase and probably will for the rest of 1948.

"The housing shortage is being solved but the price of shelter cannot be expected to drop materially until there is a decrease in the general price structure," the league secretary said.

He pointed to one action which has had a sobering effect on the spiraling prices of existing and new residential building.

In line with deflationary measures taken by the federal reserve system and member banks, Tobin said, saving and loan associations have demanded larger and larger down payments as prices increased.

In stating the acute housing shortage that existed for a year after the end of the war has eased considerably, Tobin said that towards this end, Ohio savings and loan association during the first eight months of 1948 have made 70,500 loans to home-owners, of which 24,657 have been for newly constructed shelter units.

Other lending institutions, he said, have added at least 20,000 additional new units, making approximately 44,657 new units either started or completed during the first eight months of this year.

"There always is a housing shortage when employment and income are high and a surplus when employment and income are low," Tobin pointed out.

"The shortage during the past several years," he said, "became acute because of the increase in the number of families, a decrease in the number of people occupying a unit of shelter, higher birth rate, rent control and higher incomes."

He said the cost of housing is high because the demand exceeds the supply—because the cost of labor is higher, and that "labor costs, one way or another, account for 90 percent of the cost of a home."

Too, Tobin declared, the price of housing is high because taxes are higher. He said the word "tax" as used refers to excise and profit taxes, income taxes, unemployment compensation taxes, and the like.

"It doesn't refer to real estate tax on a completed property," he said. "In 1939 taxes accounted for 1.9 percent of the sales price of a residential building; in 1948 it had increased to 11.1 percent of the sales price."

Another factor in increased costs, he said, is the increase in the demand for comforts of living.

Tobin said the average home buyer today wants more—demands more facilities, more comforts of more living. The new home buyer may ask for insulation, storm windows, special glass, winter and summer air conditioning, attic fans, two-car garages, recreation rooms, combination shower and tub, extra lavatory or bath, better architecture, more utilities in the kitchen, more extensive use of copper instead of tin, tailor-made window screens, and other new improvements.

"The only thing that enters into the cost of acquiring a home that is less today than it was 10 years ago is the financing, which is down 33 1-3 percent," Tobin declared.

"Lack of financing funds has no part in the housing shortage picture," he said.

"For example, savings and loan associations in Ohio have loaned approximately $292,000,000 during the first eight months of the year.

"At the rate new savings are pouring into these institutions and repayments are being made on existing mortgages, savings and loan associations from these two sources alone could lend $293,000 every business hour or a total of $1,280,000 every business day. Other mortgages lending institutions are as amply supplied with funds."

Despite high prices of shelter, Tobin stated, "housing today is not beyond the reach of the families of modest means." He said in Ohio, 46.3 percent of the families with incomes under $3,000 own their own homes.

Herbert Will Run Behind Dewey, Is Taft's Prediction

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said today he thinks Governor Thomas Herbert of Ohio will run behind a Republican national ticket in the election next month.

Taft told a news conference he believes that Herbert, a Republican up for reelection, will win "but by a good deal less than" Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP presidential candidate.

Taft declined to estimate the margin he thought Herbert would run behind Dewey.

Herbert is opposed by Frank Lausche, former Ohio Democratic governor.

Taft said his Ohio speaking schedule, after a southern tour, will include appearances at Cincinnati and Chillicothe Oct. 21, Wilmington, Oct. 22, and Cleveland, Oct. 24.

He said he and Mrs. Taft will leave for Europe November 4. They will spend most of their time in Italy, he said, with a few days in Germany and France, returning to New York on December 14.

New Anti-Freeze Going on Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP)—A new permanent type anti-freeze now is being allotted to its 37,000 dealers, the Texas Company announced today.

Present output was kept a trade secret, but the company said it would be at least two years before the industry could produce enough to satisfy demand in the present acute shortage.

The Texaco PT anti-freeze is based on ethylene glycol with added chemicals at the Port Neches, Texas plant of the Jefferson Chemical Co., owned jointly by the Texas Co. and American Cyanamid Company.

Texas officials estimated total demand this season for anti-freeze would reach 80 million gallons, of which about 27 million gallons would be for the permanent type which does not evaporate. They predict that within five years demand would reach 90 million gallons, with 45 million permanent type being used.

The company is pricing the new anti-freeze at $2.34 a gallon delivered to dealers. Retail prices vary, but are usually around $3.50 a gallon, compared to $2.95 last season.

The permanent type anti-freeze season is a fast and short one for the dealers. Normally sales all but end around Nov. 15, except for cars with leaky radiators.

Lions Polish Offense For Greenfield Game

While the Lions did not exactly take it easy at Tuesday afternoon's drill, there was somewhat of a let-up in the rough and tumble type of workout that marked the earlier practices.

More work on the offense against the Greenfield offense was probably the most important part of the session.

Greenfield's Tigers are to come here for the annual homecoming game at Gardner Park Friday night. One of the biggest crowds of the season—if not a record-breaker—is anticipated.

The boys were put through a "dummy scrimmage" to polish up their offensive plays, including two new ones that were given them Monday afternoon.

There also was a little work on the aerial maneuvers, but Coach Fred Pierson skipped lightly over that. He said later that the Lions have been so successful on the ground while using only a few of their basic plays that it was unlikely they would attempt much passing.

As to the possibility of a Tiger air attack, Pierson just grinned and referred to three touchdowns the Lions had scored at Wilmington last Friday night on intercepted passes.

Steve Lewis, the Lion backfield coach, took up the pass defense early in the season with considerable emphasis. But at Wilmington, two of the interceptions were by linemen, Tackle Frelan VanMeter and Center George Phillips, and they converted them into touchdowns. That Pierson said show how well the backfield and line are coordinated and what teamwork means.

Incidentally, both coaches (not to mention the boys themselves) are giving the credit for their first three victories to teamwork. The boys have a one-for-all and all-for-one attitude, Pierson said.

The head coach dropped a hint for the future, too. He said more of the reserves were going to start getting into more games more often. He is pretty "high" on some of the farmer boys on the squad.

Present plans call for starting the regulars in full force Friday night. They all were in shape for Tuesday night's workout—with one exception. Bill Horney, the scrappy right guard, will be in his accustomed place, but he will be behind a mask. His nose was broken Monday afternoon. He was treated by Dr. C. G. Hayes and a special protective mask was readied for him.

High Total Is Made By O'Brien Paints

Sparked by Clark Wickensimer's fat 569, the O'Brien Paints led the Commercial League parade in the loop's opener on the Bowland lanes Tuesday night.

But the Paints had their hands full in taking three games from Carroll Halliday's boys who turned in a 2253, only 141 pins behind their 2364 total, the high for the evening.

An even closer match was that between the Country Clubbers with 1991 and the Brown & Brockmeyer crew with 1924. The Country Club took all three games, with the decisions hinging on the last frame in every one of them.

Clean Sweeps Made In Ladies League

Every one of the four matches was won by a clean sweep as the Ladies League got under way with its duck pin bowling on the Main Street alleys Tuesday night.

But in contrast to the monotony of the victory march, the scores were in wide variety. They ran all the way from the 2234 racked up by the Blue Mooners in defeating the Try Me Tax to the 1526 by which the Candy Makers lost to the Murphy Store girls.

Outstanding among the individual performances that of Betty Irons, who has just come up from the Bombers of the WHS league. She had games of 204, 168 and 189 for a 561 three game total.

Browns Win From Colts With Rally

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6.—(P)—The Cleveland Browns are still undefeated in their campaign for a third straight all-American pro football conference championship, as the result of a last-half rally that snatched victory from the Baltimore Colts, 14-10.

Last night's muddy tug of war was fought against the Brown's foremost eastern rival, and leaves the San Francisco Forty-niners—in their own western division—as their main obstacle to the title. San Francisco, likewise undefeated, has played six games to Cleveland's five.

The Colts snatched an early lead after only 90 seconds, when Y. A. Tittle passed to Billy Hillenbrand on a play that covered 78 yards for a touchdown. Rex Grossman kicked the point.

By half-time the Baltimore lead had been narrowed down to 10-7. A 44-yard pass from Cleveland's quarterback Otto Graham to Tom James led to a tie score at the end of the first quarter, but Grossman kicked a 40-yard field goal to put the Colts once more in the van.

From then on it was Cleveland all the way, with Graham setting the pace. Reliable Otto's eighty-yard heave to Edgar Jones in the third quarter brought the Browns ahead for the first time, with Lou Groza adding the point. Earlier Graham had set up the winning play by lobbing to Mac Speedie for a 21-yard gain.

JUNK DEALER FINED
GREENFIELD—Charles Cohen, junk dealer, was fined $100 and costs in mayor's court for violating a town ordinance with the bad condition of his junk yard.

XENIA—Seven indictments were returned by the Greene County grand jury which ignored three cases. Jesse Allen and Lee Allen were indicted for breaking and entering for the purpose of committing a crime.

LIME YOUR PASTURES

Every year more and more farmers are learning that good pasture is one of the most profitable crops that can be grown. Pasture grown on fertile soil is rich in protein, minerals, and vitamins. It is perfect feed for milk or meat animals.

If you haven't applied limestone or fertilizer to your pasture recently, now is the time to do it. It may take a year or so to produce a noticeable difference but it will be there.

You'll notice the difference in several ways:
1. Clover and good grass will crowd out the weeds and poor grasses.
2. More milk and meat from healthier animals.
3. Longer grazing season and less barn feeding.
4. Lower production costs, more profits.

Start your pasture improvement now by first applying the needed amount of agricultural limestone. It's the first step.

Ink Daubers Win In R-H Steak Race

The scores were not too hot, but the Ink Daubers stretched their slight lead over the Slug Throwers in the Record-Herald steak race when they bowled a 1479 total in the second heat on the Bowland lanes Tuesday after quitting time in the afternoon.

The match was cut from three to two games when the time and energy ran out. The regular league bowlers started coming in before the second match was finished.

The winning team will be the guest of the loser at the end of a month's bowling. Then the lineups will be reshuffled on the basis of averages to keep the competition up.
